WHAT EVERYBODY SAYS MUST BE TRUE That Both Yesterday and To-Day in D. CRAWFORD & CO.'S GREAT STORE

There were More Customers, Two to One, than there were in all the Dry Goods Stores in the City put together.

FACT NO. 2.

That there are to be found in one square yard of

D. CRAWFORD & CO.'S GREAT STORE.

More Real Bargains than are to be found in all the stores in the City put together.

FACT NO. 3.

That the announcements of a Great Sale from this Truthful House are the only ones that carry weight, and are believed in by a discerning Public.

FACT NO. 4.

That instead of discharging salesmen at this season, as all the other stores do, this house has added to its already large force Forty Extra Salesmen.

FACT NO. 5.

That this House never does things by halves. When it goes in to sell its surplus stock, it does it with a will and a dash without regard to values that, like the MIGHTY NIAGARA, carries all before it.

FACT NO. 6.

That in spite of the socalled dull times the sales of this house for the past year are away ahead of the previous one!

With such an array of facts 'tis no wonder that standing room is these days at a premium

THE BIG "SCRIBE"

George Augustus Sala's Reception by the New York Press Club.

An Enjoyable Affair—Mr. Sala Astonished by the Humorous Introduction of the Club Members—President Cummings' Graceful Address of Welcome—The Distinguished Englishman Speaks From the Heart.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

New York, January 13.—Mr. George Augustus Sala was given a reception by the New York Press Club in Nassau street yesterday afternoon. He was received by President Amos Cummings. Mr. Cummings introduced himself, and the two gentlemen shook hands warmly, and then established themselves in what was about the lesser lights of the press corps themselves. There was a fifty editor, and went through a reality of an introduction to the distinguished English journal. There were reporters from 18 to 48, with a plentiful sprinkling of honorary members and comparatively public men. Mr. Sala was glad to see everybody. He was the soul of affability. Congressman-elect Merriman sauntered up. His little hand was quite lost in the flesh which the Englishman pushed forward to meet it. Mr. Cummings gracefully explained Mr. Merriman's political-journalistic character. Mr. Sala was proud, he said, to meet "a member for the ranks."

Mr. Merriman blushed and made room for ex-president of the club Henningsen, who was wisely introduced as a dynamiter. Mr. Henningsen was as popular in the fact as he is in the name. Mr. Cummings quickly explained that no one uses the term "dynamiter" except that no one uses the term "dynamiter." Mr. Sala didn't apparently see the joke, and the ex-president would not. It was quite an embarrassing moment for the two men.

Red Sever stepped forward. Mr. Cummings introduced him as "Tuny man." Mr. Sala looked commanding upon the shrimping youth. Horatio Kinnarong joined them.

"Now, here," said Mr. Cummings, "is somebody you really ought to know." The gentleman in question was a tall, thin, very active man, and is talked of for a Cabinet position. The General waded.

"Dear me, you don't call me so." Next came Governor Minn, whose rear view is a rear view of Barley Campbell.

"This will too too." The Governor forgot his most recent speech and everybody laughed.

Assey Cole advanced with a bounding step as though he was a young bull.

INTRODUCING MR. SALA TO A WAITER.

He salaamed, was pleased, etc., and then he sidled over to a waiter who had a collection of "space men," who, with open mouths and "widens in their eyes," were staring at the extraordinary scribbles from over the sea who said to have descended from the stars to the newspaper. Such laborious and conscientious gentlemen as William Garrison, Charles L. Eliot, and the like, and others, stood silent and apart, gazing at the great shining example of the newspaper profession which the artist models might be expected to bring up the lovely statue of Venus de Medici. Mr. Sala tried not to be his companion, but he couldn't help it. The waiter bowed, but the other waiters worshipped on. Presently an adjournment was made to an upper room, where President Cummings, with his speech introduced the guests of the hour to the club.

"You humor yourselves," said Mr. Cummings, "in honoring me with the Queen. When I entered the field of journalism, it was dominated by such intellectual guess as on this side the water a Greek, or a Frenchman, or a German, or a Swiss." (Here Mr. Sala said "hear! hear!")—Prentiss, a Rive and a Daniel, and on the other side of the ocean, by Dickens, Thackeray, and the like. It was an era indeed, who blundered the armor on.

THE KNIGHT OF THE QUILL.

Mr. Cummings said many other graceful things concerning the man who had the comparatively small attendance of club members.

Mr. Sala was loudly applauded as he rose to reply. "I am a true knight of the Quill. When I entered the field of journalism, it was dominated by such intellectual guess as on this side the water a Greek, or a Frenchman, or a German, or a Swiss." True for the evidence in the St. John case is conclusive against LEGATE.

The president of the Globe Printing Company is foreman of the Grand Jury of the Criminal Court, but he will not indict any one unless there is stronger evidence against him than the evidence against St. John.

Governor Marmaduke has made a very good beginning. He has broken away from the stupid custom of combining a stump speech with a code of ethics and calling it an inaugural address and he has appointed a Board of Police Commissioners who enter office without conditions or bargains of any kind. If these acts are fair samples of the coming administration, Marmaduke will be a successful Governor.

What kind of citizens are selected to hold office in New Orleans? Two weeks ago the cowardly murder of the Work House superintendent was accomplished by a hand under the leadership of one of the city Judges, and yesterday the attempt to murder the editor of an offensive newspaper was made by the Tax Collector and the Supervisor of Registration. If Expositions have a civilizing influence there is a wide field of usefulness before the New Orleans Exposition.

The Law and Order League announces its third annual meeting on WASHINGTON's birthday, and, inasmuch as the 2nd of February falls on Sunday this year, the business meeting will be held on the 23d. The object of the Law and Order League is not to sustain all laws, but merely to secure a better enforcement of the laws restraining the liquor traffic. GEORGE WASHINGTON, if we remember rightly, was in favor of not interfering with the personal liberties of his fellow citizens.

Our local columns contain a report of the purchase by D. CRAWFORD & Co. of the stock of the late firm of LEUBRIN & BRO'S. Their check is said to be the largest ever given in payment for personal property at a Sheriff's sale in St. Louis. Every one will regret that the pressure of the times was too much for the enterprising LEUBRIN'S, and we hope to hear soon that they will resume their position in the business world, in the meantime the purchase by CRAWFORD means that remains here in St. Louis.

In-house returns for last week, to a certain extent, the activity business show a marked improvement as compared with the corresponding week of last year. The only cities in which the long dull record of comparative decrease continues are New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, Milwaukee and Cincinnati all show a very gratifying increase, Boston and Baltimore have a small decrease.

It is worthy of remark that in Kansas City and Memphis the bank clearings have nearly doubled in a year, a result which must be attributed to the new railroad connections of these cities.

SARAH BERNHARDT countenances the story that she is considering the subject of a divorce from DAMALA by telling a correspondent that she has had an offer of marriage from an Englishman under strange and romantic circumstances.

It is not only romantic, but almost a tale of a man, with the fate of A. RICHARD and others before his eyes, offers himself to such a female Bluebeard, "nearly Englishman, perhaps, has found mining in India too tame and has sought his pluck and prowess on SAMALI as he could not afford the required amusement which turn up in this country soon enough with a Western cyclone."

Democrat is publishing a great silence against CLARKSON, KERENS, and PLUM, showing how they enter into a villainous conspiracy to entrap St. John, and how utterly they tempt. It shows how the notoriety of Kansas used another man's name in playing one of his cards at a corruption fund, as committed at a scheme dropped on the game, "so weak was, as usual, baited for KERENS, not CLARKSON that St. John ever to him on the subject, "tells he told the went St. John, but denies that he pretended to be St. John's agent in the negotiation, and even denies that there was any such negotiation at all. The court that would admit such stuff as proof of any serious charge against St. JOHN, would be the form of malice, hatred and all uncharitable. We are not surprised at the statement of the Burlington Hawkeye, a Republican organ, when it says: "The rabid declarations of The Register (CLARKSON's paper) have, as a matter of fact, tended to reprove St. John to public confidence."

CALL PLUM.

Perhaps Senator PLUM may be able to supply the missing link that is needed in the evidence to identify St. JOHN as a consenting party to the Legate negotiation. Senator PLUM should be put on the witness stand by all means.

The disappearance last Saturday of the Tammany organ, the New York Star, is one of the signs of the times. It was reported a few days ago that there was hot competition to buy the property, and it was even stated that Mr. ENGLAND, son of the publisher of the Sun, had outbid Mr. MCLEAN of the Cincinnati Enquirer and had bought the Star for $150,000. These rumors are disposed of by the announcement that the paper has ceased to exist. The reasons publicly given by the manager for its discontinuance are the "hard times and the strain of competition." This means that the Star, merely an organ of Tammany, could not occupy any position among newspapers after the World had established itself as the organ of the National Democracy.

every way offensive, and the gentlemen who supported its introduction must be held responsible for its disagreeable consequences.

The revelations incident to the Phelan affair will probably put an end to the dynamic business and consign all who were engaged in it to everlasting infamy. It is now apparent that there was neither patriotism nor good faith nor good fellowship among them. They utterly mistrusted each other, because they instinctively recognized the fact that nobody but things and traitors would enter into such conspiracies theirs. To carry out their proposed objects or promises to do so, a man must be so dead to every sense of pity, humanity or honor, that he could easily betray his confederates in any cause and sell their lives with as little compunction as he would sell the lives of the possible victims of their plots.

Additional Roll of Destitute People—Very Liberal Contributions.

The cold spell now prevailing has brought on considerable additional suffering among the poor and the destitute. There is consequently a great addition to the number of calls for help, both at the police stations and on the various charity organizations.

"Your announcement of the destination in the Post-Dispatch of the Poor-District of yesterday said Officer David Van Duzen, "was most good.

We have reserved $30 in cash, some clothing and coal. Had it not been for the efforts of the Post-Dispatch and the strength of Tammany, we will be in a reign of law and order in this town as we never before known. I believe you have done a great deal for the welfare of the people.

The contributions to the Post-Dispatch have been most liberal, and the amount of money received is quite sufficient to cover all other principal creditors, was also in the field and did some still bidding. The stock was offered first and received a bid of $30,000 at once. This was followed by bids of from $500 to $1,000 more in quick succession until it ran up to $10,000 more in $200 increments. The bidding was then stopped, and increased by sum of $60, $100 and $300. Nearly all of the bidders stayed in, and is believed to be the oldest person in the United States.

Peter loves a parrot. Modjeska adores a black cock. Wagstaffe's supercilious affection on a little Chinaman, whom he called Chin, and Mary Anderson chatters to a pair of yellow canaries while writing Juliette's love-verse.

Mrs. BLANE is reported to have declined to go to the reception in an ill-timed letter to the President. She is out of humor and had tampered anyhow, and the rumor is generally credited. Mrs. Logan sweetly accepted, and wry much praise and good opinion by the contrast.

Some awful disclosures have lately been made in New York. The Mail says: "However humiliating the fact may be, poker playing is undoubtedly included among the recreations for alleged ladies and gentlemen of the highest fashionable circles, and many a skulking scoundrel is to be traced to success betwixt bats."

Tax Secretary of State's wife ranks all others at Presidential dinners. At dinners to Justices of the Supreme Court she is first and before the Chief Justice's wife. At dinners to Senators she is before the wife of the President of the Senate (not the Vice-President), when there is one in regular order, and over the Speaker's wife when they are to Representatives. At Diplomatic Corps dinners the white wife of the Minister from the "colored" Republic of Hayti is first lady.

Mr. CLARKSON is still before the court a pugilist of state of mind, he can hardly form a just

GRAND ANNUAL STOCK-TAKING SALE HAS BEGUN

AND WILL CONTINUE DURING THE WEEK, when the Lowest Prices ever known in Dry Goods Circles will prevail. It is sufficient for the People of St. Louis that this advertisement is from the

WM. BARR DRY GOODS COMPANY

To Satisfy them that it is NOT the REGULAR CHEAP CLAP-TRAP and TRANSPARENT DECEPTION that appears almost daily in the papers.

This is GENUINE, and There Will be Plenty of BARGAINS TO-MORROW!

Whatever You May Forget, Be Sure to Remember The

W.M. BARR DRY GOODS CO.'S STOCK-TAKING SALE

THIS WEEK at Olive, Sixth and Seventh; or Locust, Sixth and Seventh; or Sixth, Olive to Locust Sts.
